Your Proposal*Why do you want to do this internship? What do you hope to learn?

Of the law firms that I researched, Womble Carlyle seemed to have a program that exposes interns to many different areas of corporate law, including commercial real estate, patents and communications. I am trying to decide whether corporate law is the right path for me, so I am interested in an internship that allows me to try out many different kinds of law. I participated in a competitive application process and was able to gain an internship at the firm's Washington, D.C. office. I think this internship will prepare me well for law school or other opportunities.

Through this internship, I hope to learn some basics of the business, make contacts that in the office who can offer advice about law schools, and better understand the life of a lawyer. As a rising junior, I know I will need to think about post-graduate plans in the coming year. This will help me make a better decision about law school and career plans.

How does this relate to your academic or career goals?

While I feel relatively certain that I would like to go to law school, I am interested in learning more about which fields in law are most interesting. My macroeconomics professor suggested I consider corporate law, given my interest in business and regulation. I think this experience will help me find out whether this is truly a field I will find interesting, or if I need to consider other options.
